From the St. Louis Union. Outrage at Griggsville, Illinois.

We alluded a day or two since to a statement, which we met with rean exchange, that a riot had recently occurred at Griggsville, III. The particulars, as formished by a gentleman from that vicinity, are as follows:

ity, are as follows.

Some five or six weeks since, as a respectable young woman, living near Griegsville, was returning from church in the evening in company with a made friend, the pair were overtaken by a rollian named Huat, also a resident of the vicinity of Griggsville, who knocked down the young man, and by force and violence hurried away his companion to an undrequented place, where, by threats of instant death, he acceeded in accomplishing the most finalish designs on her person.

After the accomplishment of this outrage, Huat forced his victim to accompany him to the house of his father, where he kept hur during that right. On the next day the paor girl returned to the house of, her mother, who was them, and had been for some time, prostrated on a bed of sickness. Here she remained for that day, when her destroy er, fearing that legal measures would be instituted against him, determined to hear off the witness of his guilt. Accompanied by two brothers, as desired. there she remained for that day, when her destroy or, fearing that legal measures would be instituted against him, determined to bear off the witness of his guilt. Assumptined by two brothers, as despirate as himself, he went in the evening to the residence of the young woman, and ordered her to accompany him. The mother and an aged grand mother remonstrated, and called in the aid of some young men who were attending a writing school hard by. The Hunts however, being well armed, here off their victim, notwithstanding all resistance, during which the grandmother of the girl was knecked down and shamefully maltreated.

The party of outlaws bore the girl some 3 miles digitant, and for several days kept her in confine word. We awarnat was sued out for their word Meanwhile as warnat was sued out for their word.

ment. Meanwhile a warrant was sued out for their arrest, and a constable and his posse proceeded to their place of concealment, but they found the house barricaded and the Hunts prepared to dispute an

The constable, not deeming that his authority justified him in proceeding further, retired

Next morning. Hunt and the young woman crossed the river, with the intention of taking the steamboat for this city. A party of chizeos followed, when Hunt, perceiving them approaching, fled, but was afterward arrested and lodged in juil at Pfitsfield. The ruised girl was restored to her

Thus matters stood, until about a fortnight since, when two sisters of the Hunts, who, it is said, reside in this city, and keep a bouse of ill fame, went to Griegsville, with the avowed intention of carrying off the witness against their brother. This further artempt at outrage greatly exasperated the citizens, and the women were unceremoniously required to leave Griegsville with all speed. A public meeting was then held with re-erence to the Hunt family, which, it seems, is rather namerous in that neighborhood, a d notorious for deeds of outlawry. The result was, that they were all required to leave the country within a designated period of time. With this requirement all compiled but one, who, persisting in his refusal, was taken up analynched. After receiving some dozen lashes, he was liberated, under promise of departing from the neighborhood, never to return. MKLANCHOLY EFFECTS OF THE USE OF CHLORO-FORM—A young lady of this city, who up to that time had enjoyed good health, took some chloroform several weeks ago in order to have several tech-extracted without pain. When the operation was finished, she was quite delirous, and could not tell where she lived or who she was. She was seized home in a carriage and soon after she was seized with spasms of the most violent character. These continued almost without interruption for many days—often threatening immediate death. The best medical skill could not mitigate their severity best medical skill could not mitigate their severity or their frequency. Recently we believe recourse has been had to mercurial preparations, which have put an end to the spasms; but have left the patient in a state of suffering which no langu ge can describe. Her complete recovery can hardly be expected, though hopes are entertained that the end of her intensest sufferings is not far distant. It is now about three weeks since she took the chloreform, and she has ever since been in the keenest agony.
